Excerpt: . . . DAIRY FARMING IN NATAL. By Percy D. Simmons, J. P. , one of the Judges of the Natal Agricultural Society Judges Association, and one of the Pioneers of well-bred stock in Natal. Some six years ago, when the Natal Agricultural Journal was first started (in 1898), I expressed my views regarding stock and dairy farming in Natal. In spite of the war, and the depression that, naturally, consequently followed, the optimistic views I then took of the Colonys prospects as regards stock rearing have been more than realised. I have seen no reason to change my views, though the matter of stock and dairy farming is one which, I know, provokes very conflicting opinions. From what is often heard and read, an immigrant might be led to believe that Natal, as a country in which to farm, compared poorly with the rest of the world. Now, do we allow ourselves to enquire into the drawbacks of other countries, and then make comparisons Do those of us who have had some experience elsewhere let ourselves think what experience we should have had there if we had attempted to farm on the limited amounts of capital we invest in our farming here My uppermost thoughts prompt me to say we should be glad to return to our little Garden Colony, and be grateful hereafter that we had the chance to return. I do not quote our Colony as one to be compared for grain producing with...
