Excerpt from Rollins College: Its Field and Its Future; An Address Delivered on the Occasion of His Inauguration as President of Rollins College, April Second, Nineteen Hundred and Three The president of a college in these days occupies a position and confronts a task of no little difficulty. Consider the several and diverse groups of people with whom he must deal - a Board of Trustees whose standards of efficiency are, and ought to be, primarily financial; a faculty whose ideals are academic, and each of whom is forever, and very properly, urging the claims of his own department to larger consideration and more generous treatment; a group of students, some of them bright and ambitious, some dull and indifferent, some incurably indolent, some vicious, and all of them callow and headstrong; parents who have entrusted their most precious interests to his care, and who expect him to give to each particular boy and girl a father's solicitous attention, or even, perhaps, to correct faults for which they themselves are responsible; patrons who are looking sharply...
