

Dichotomy: Zionism in Its Twilight

By Mohammed Younis

Createspace, United States, 2010. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . The title Dichotomy has been chosen with particular reasons attached to it. Dichotomy as a word on its own has a shadowy, inconclusive meaning. Therefore, the subtitle Zionism in its Twilight gives the title a foundation upon which to consolidate the content of the book on the whole. The Zionists would most certainly disagree with the connotation that title on the whole carries. I as writer from a Muslim community has with the sociological proof defend both of the titles and more so the content. Indeed the Jewish intelligencia with my calculated and soundly based would at least go the major ways towards my goal of proving that Zionism as an ideology has gone past its peak. Simply because its foundation has had been founded upon eclipsed crescent, which has now cleared itself from the haze, or in my own generated terms the Grey-Age of the Islamic/Muslim World. The grey-age that I have registered in historical perspective as from the beginning of 18th to the mid-20th Century (CA). During this period the call for the development of ZIONISM...
